

I absolutely oppose softening the law to allow tele-marketers to call an individual on the no-call list. If consumers take the time to get on this list, under no circumstances should any intrusions be allowed. Companies violating it should be given even more strict penalties and the process to report violations should be made easier.